Devan Sood is a first-generation American who grew up in LA and started his first company in high school. By running that clothing company he found his passion for entrepreneurship, and his second venture, a social media app called Zapstream, led to his love for building tech products. Since then, he's been helping world-class founders and startups with marketing and product-led growth. He briefly led growth at Duffl (YC-S20) and is now the cofounder of Orca. Orca is reinventing renting for the remote-work world — month-to-month, anywhere in the world.
